For the RE on-line "Cookbook" a couple of great books with Religious Art pictures in them. My 7th grade class enjoyed the pictures... helped the stories of Moses and Jesus come alive for them.

Just thought I'd share a fun technology note. Sarah (my 7th grader) decided to use some of her money to buy a nook reader. Kate (my college sophomore) already has one and they're going to share the book account. Kate had already downloaded two versions of the bible (and Magnificat) so, this weekend when Sarah and I were catching up on her first two RE lessons, she was able to quickly find and read her bible verses using the nook! I found that she was more excited about reading them because of the nook than if she were reading through the regular bible. Sarah is lobbying for me to let her bring it to follow along with the readings during Mass, and I'm not there yet (no one around us would believe that's what she's doing . . .), but she enjoyed the movie/bible format of the lessons so far.
